Claims 3 and 39 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on May 21, 2007.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, 4, 6-8, 10, 12, 14, 17-22, 24-26, 28, 30, 32, 35-38, 40, 42-44, 46, 48, 50 and 53-55 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Ravenscroft et al. (6,258,026). Ravenscroft et al. disclose primary struts 26, each primary strut comprising a member 26 (which is curved where it is bent as it projects outside of hub 12 and at shoulder 30) terminating at anchoring hook 28, secondary struts 18 connected to the primary struts 26 (where they are welded together within hub 12 as indicated in col. 4, lines 34-38) and extending therefrom. Alternatively, it would have been obvious that each primary strut 26 is curved where it is bent. As to claim 2, there are two secondary struts 18 on opposite sides of a primary strut 26 due to the alternating arrangement (in the circumferential direction) of the primary struts 26 and secondary struts 18 described in col. 5, lines 26-32.

Claims 11, 13, 15, 16, 29, 31, 33, 34, 47, 49, 51 and 52 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ravenscroft et al. (6,258,026). Ravenscroft et al. fail to disclose the specific dimensions. However, it is old and well known to dimension blood filters as claimed in order to obtain the advantage of enabling them to fit inside small blood vessels. It would have been obvious to so dimension the Ravenscroft et al. filter so that it too would have this advantage.

Claims 1, 2, 4-38 and 40-55 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ravenscroft et al. (6,258,026) in view of Walak et al. (6,540,767). Assuming arguendo that the Ravenscroft et al. primary struts 26 are not considered to be curved, Walak et al., in figure 15 teach that the struts of a filter should be gently curved apparently in order to obtain the advantage of more smoothly conforming to the walls of the blood vessel (due to the gradual nature of their bends). It would have been obvious to curve the Ravenscroft et al. primary struts 26 so that it too would have this advantage. As to claim 9, for example, Ravenscroft et al. fail to disclose a retrieval hook. However, Walak et al. teach that a retrieval hook 64 should be included on the hub of a filter apparently in order to obtain the advantage facilitating easy retrieval of the filter. It would have been obvious to include a retrieval hook on the Ravenscroft et al. filter so that it too would have this advantage.
